

John B. Beckman

Partner

Washington, D.C.

Biography

John Beckman helps his clients navigate the ever-changing public company landscape. He focuses on SEC disclosure, stock exchange listing requirements, financial and accounting issues, proxy solicitations, insider trading, state corporate law issues, transactions, and corporate governance. John frequently represents companies in connection with shareholder interactions, including hostile situations such as proxy contests.

As co-leader of the firm's Public Company Advisory practice and a member of the firm's Capital Markets and Securities leadership team, John's focus is on representing public companies and their boards on strategic matters. He helps clients in a broad range of complex corporate transactions, such as mergers, acquisitions, divestitures, spin-offs, dividends and distributions, tender offers, exchange offers, and recapitalizations.

John serves as regular outside corporate governance and securities counsel to numerous NYSE and NASDAQ listed companies. In addition, John is regularly engaged as special securities counsel by other law firms, companies, and boards to advise on special situations. He represents companies in an array of industries, including aerospace, defense and government services, industrial, financial services, consumer products, and
