

Julie Schindel

Senior Associate

Baltimore

Biography

With a passion for medicine and a natural scientific aptitude, Julie Schindel doesn't just grasp the complex medical and scientific issues involved in products liability litigation – she masters them so her clients don't have to.

Her ability to steep herself in the subject matter of each case, as well as her clients' business and their industry, enables her to offer counsel that is both nuanced and practical.

Julie's civil practice focuses primarily on product liability litigation, including individual, mass tort, multidistrict litigation, and class actions in federal and state courts across the United States. She also has experience in complex civil and commercial litigation. Julie's clients and team members know they can trust her to learn the details better than anyone else and to translate that knowledge into thoughtful, practical, strategic analyses. This balance of detail-oriented, thorough scientific know how with business-focused insights is the hallmark of her practice.

Julie received her J.D., cum laude, from the University of Maryland School of Law in 2016 and was a summer associate with Hogan Lovells in 2015 and 2014. During law school, Julie served as an extern for the Honorable Richard D. Bennett in the U.S. District Court for the
